

Whole Person Care - an Integrated Approach

A three day conference, jointly organised by PRIME and NCFI, for all tutors and interested friends and colleagues.

Thursday 17th - Saturday 19th June 2010

Kirkintilloch Baptist Church

52 Townhead, Kirkintilloch, Glasgow G66 1NL

What does truly integrated whole person care look like?

What are the roles of the different professionals and how can they better support each other?

How can such an approach be taught effectively in this and other cultures?

This conference will provide an introduction to PRIME's vision, ethos and teaching methods, and will start to develop a Christian model of integrated medical/nursing whole person care.

The conference will explore:

- strategies for effective partnerships between doctors, nurses and other healthcare professionals in different situations
- different methods and materials available to help healthcare professionals be inspired and equipped to teach compassionate and whole person care
- the opportunities at home and in other cultures that exist to improve healthcare through value-based education using an integrated whole person approach

PRIME teaches Whole Person Medicine to groups of health professionals all around the world as a way of encouraging awareness of all aspects of patients' problems, and how to practice patient-centred medicine. Working in the light of awareness of one's values is a potential way of influencing attitudes and behaviours for the benefit of patient care.

There will also be opportunities to discuss the work of PRIME, and how you might be part of our vision in your workplace, in the UK or as part of a PRIME team around the world.

Start - 9.00am Thursday, finish 3.00pm Saturday

Delegate Fees: £100

B&B and hotel accommodation available locally.

PRIME aims to improve healthcare and education by coupling modern medical science to the Christian perspective that we are all made in God's image - mind, body and spirit. The care and compassion for the whole person should be the business of us all.

NCFI is committed to bringing the Lord Jesus Christ to nursing world-wide by, amongst other methods, facilitating teaching which brings Biblical foundations to nursing education, practice, management and research.
